Hi Dick,

I answered you about this on my blackberry over the weekend; but have found that sometimes those messages do not go through. Again, this is not 'our' choir. My opinion is they want to be the 'arm chair quarterback' and call the plays that are, by law, given to the authority of the 'elected' board members. Typically, elected officials do not relinquish their authority to the non-elected citizenry that just wants to be negative. I'm not sure the spirit of voting you all in, is for you to pass that on. You all have the authority vested in law to either agree or disagree, aye or nay, any of the administration's recommendations. And by the way, the administration is trained, experienced and licensed to make those recommendations. The finance committee wants to make the recommendations. Is this Board in favor of that?

Again, if I've repeated myself, sorry, wanted to make sure I'm clear about how ridiculous this group is. How tasking of my time they are. And, did you notice that Jim Larr argued about a total that derived from a spreadsheet he put the formula in. Even he doesn't know what his spreadsheet is telling them.
AAAGGGHHHH!!!!

Are we playing to the choir on this or is it necessary to waste your time in satisfying appointed people who don't have anything better to do that think up make-work for you and the rest of the staff? I think we should answer briefly and move on. Let them find something else to occupy their time.
November 4th is their end date.

Dick
